Dear Sirs,

Re:

" in Class 09 and 35

We write to you with regards to the above matter.

Trademark Registration of in Singapore.

We are pleased to inform you that we have successfully submitted the above application with the Intellectual Property Office of Singapore (IPOS) on 19th August 2021. A copy of the "Trademark status", which acts as a proof of filing is attached herewith for your kind attention.

Kindly take note that the Registry has allocated the above mark the Trademark Number: 40202119926V.

Your application will now be examined for substantive compliance. Such examination would include a search to see if the above mark looks or sounds similar to any other trade mark which is already registered or has already been applied for by someone else, in the relevant class. The examiners will also search to see if the mark consists of or contains a geographical name. All of the above may give rise to grounds for objections raised against the trade mark application. If the Registrar has any objections to the marks, she will inform us, as your Trademark Agents, and grant us a specified period of time in which to overcome the objection.

After the searches have been conducted, the application will be examined to determine whether the mark is registrable in accordance with the law. The examiner will check to ensure that the mark does not fall into the areas not allowed by law, for example, marks that are devoid of any distinctive character. Where objections are successfully overcome, or none are raised, the application will be published for public information in the Trade Marks Journal. Any interested party may oppose the registration of the mark within 2 months of the publication. During the two month period, which is known as the opposition period, the public, or any interested third party may object to the grant of a trade mark registration.

The above is a brief outline of the possible routes or progress of your application herein. We shall keep you informed of further development in due course.

Please rest assured that we will monitor the progress of the above trademark application and we will keep you informed accordingly.

We thank you once again for instructing us in this matter and if you have any further queries, please do not hesitate to get in touch with us.

Yours sincerely, Kris Karthi For GLOBAL INTELLECTS PTE LTD
